

SHIPBROKERS - Bruce Ogilvy, Chairman, Institute of Chartered Shipbrokers (ICS)

After completing 3 years at naval college Bruce joined Houlder Brothers as a cadet. After obtaining his Masters' ticket he worked on Shell tankers before being asked to work ashore in its operational and chartering departments. He stayed with Shell ashore for 27 years, managing its Ships Agency Division and ultimately its Chartering and Special Projects Department. He went on to be Managing Director of Stelmar Tankers (UK). He has been an active member of the Institute of Chartered Shipbrokers for some 25 years.

If you think safety training and education are expensive then try an accident. Not just training of seafarers but shore staff too.

ICS education and training provider with, in 2006, 1400 candidates sitting 3700 papers in 78 examination centres worldwide.

Strengthens links in chain of responsibility by giving the industry better-educated staff, through a commitment to staff development; a safer shipping environment with less contractual risk in the system; demonstration of self-regulation with common worldwide standard of professional competence and conduct.

We give you our word that the ICS accepts the challenge and fully supports Poseidon Challenge. We shall promote this initiative whenever and wherever we can.

COMMITMENTS:

- Committed to raising professional standards.
- Challenge to those present to submit minimum of 5 staff for ICS foundation diploma education programme the in next 12 mths.
- The ICS Education Trustees have agreed to a new prize of £1000 which will be awarded to the candidate who in the Examination Board's opinion has been the most outstanding student of the year. This prize is being launched as a Poseidon initiative.